Operation on LBJ May Be Friday

By FRANK CORMIER
JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson likes to be the first voter in this hill country town to cast his ballot. But facing surgery perhaps as early as Friday, he's taking it easy and says he plans to vote "when I wake up."

Still, nobody was betting that Johnson and wife Lady Bird wouldn't be at the polling place early.

The Johnsons vote at the stone headquarters building of the Pedernales Rural Electric Cooperative, a power-dispensing complex.

This year's election in Texas centers around the race for the U.S. Senate seat vacated by Johnson when he became John F. Kennedy's Vice President.

Conservative Democrat Waggoner Carr is trying to unseat Republican John Tower, another conservative.

There was no doubt where the Johnsons stood on the Carr-Tower race. The President sent a telegram to a Carr rally in San Antonio Monday night and said the Democratic candidate could count on at least two votes.

Gov. John B. Connally, an old friend and political ally of Johnson's, face hardly more than token Republican opposition in his contest for re-election. The President's congressman, Democrat J. J. (Jack) Pickel of Austin, seemed assured of another term.

The President was in San Antonio briefly Monday, to undergo routine tests at Brooke Army Medical Center where he hopes to have the surgery performed.

Johnson told newsmen afterwards that he hopes to be operated on Friday and, if not then, next Tuesday. Last Thursday, he said his doctors wanted him to rest for 15 or 18 days before the surgery. He has been following a busy pace since then.

The President spent about 1½ hours at the hospital, got about a dozen X-rays of stomach and abdomen and was probed and tested around the nose and throat. He said his electrocardiogram was normal and that his blood pressure was well within the normal range.

"Everything they found was normal," he reported.

Surgeons will remove a polyp, or growth, from Johnson's throat and repair an abdominal hernia that developed along the incision from his 1965 gall bladder-kidney stone operation.

Flood Control Bill Signed by Johnson

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—A bill authorizing construction of 38 flood control, navigation and beach erosion projects in Arkansas and 24 other states has been signed by President Johnson.

The projects will cost an estimated $670,235,000. The President signed the bill at his ranch Sunday night, but the signing of it was not announced until Monday.

The bill authorizes $9,360,000 for flood control on Bayou Bartholomew and its tributaries in Arkansas and Louisiana and $7 million for expansion of the flood planning program of Army Engineers.

The measure also provides for a survey by Engineers of water resource development on the Arkansas, White and Red rivers and its tributaries in Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma. No cost estimate was given.

The bill also authorizes relocation of gas transmission lines in connection with flood control work on the west Tennessee tributaries of the Mississippi River.

Nixon Sees GOP Win in Arkansas

By IRWIN J. MILLER
ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, winding up a 35-state campaign swing for Republican candidates in today's elections, said the "strongest tide in 20 years" will bring GOP victories for governor in California, Georgia and Arkansas and for U.S. senator in Illinois and Tennessee.

Nixon, ending a two-month campaign that reached into 65 congressional districts, told a rally of 2,500 persons Monday that Republican Charles H. Percy would win over Democratic Sen. Paul H. Douglas in the Illinois senatorial race by a margin of 750,000 votes.

He said there would be the "biggest brown-out in history" in California, a reference to the race for governor between Democratic incumbent Edmund G. Brown and Republican Ronald Reagan.

Republicans will elect governors for the first time in 100 years in Georgia and Arkansas and the first GOP U.S. senator in history will be elected in Tennessee, Nixon predicted.

The Georgia gubernatorial race puts Republican Howard Calloway against segregationist Democrat Lester G. Maddox. In Arkansas, Republican Winthrop Rockefeller faces segregationist Democrat Jim Johnson. Rockefeller is the brother of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who is seeking a third term in New York.

In the Tennessee senatorial race, Republican Howard H. Baker Jr., son-in-law of Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen, is up against Democratic Gov. Frank G. Clement.

Nixon continued his sharp criticism of the Johnson administration, saying the President erred in referring to the 89th Congress as "my Congress," because "Congress does not belong to any president, Democrat or Republican — it belongs to the people."

He said Americans should turn from Johnson to Congress for leadership, filling it with "men who will stand up for the people when the President is wrong."

After the rally, Nixon flew home to New York. He said he already had voted by absentee ballot, a straight Republican ticket, and would not be available to newsmen until Wednesday afternoon when he would comment on the election at his office.

DEATHS

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dr. Manfred S. Guttmacher, 68, internationally known for his work in relating psychiatry and criminal law, died Monday of leukemia. Guttmacher was the chief medical advisor to the supreme bench of Baltimore since 1930.

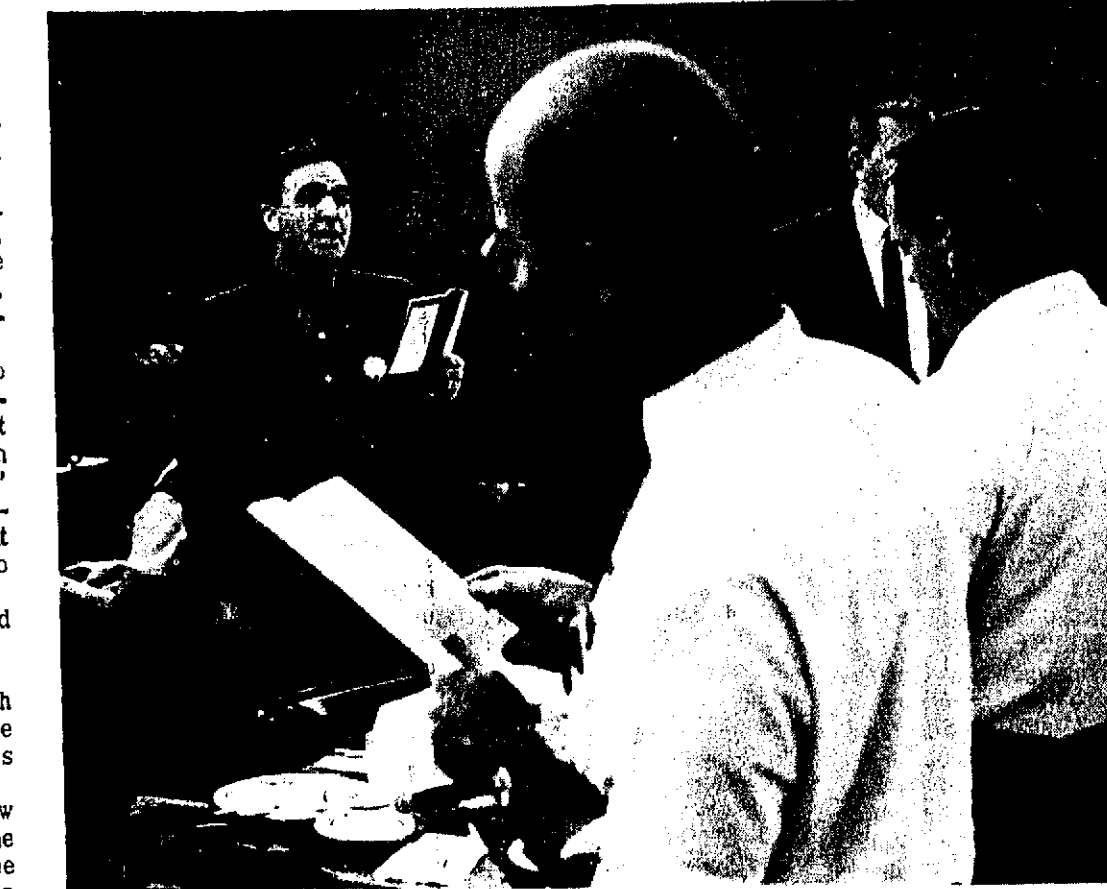

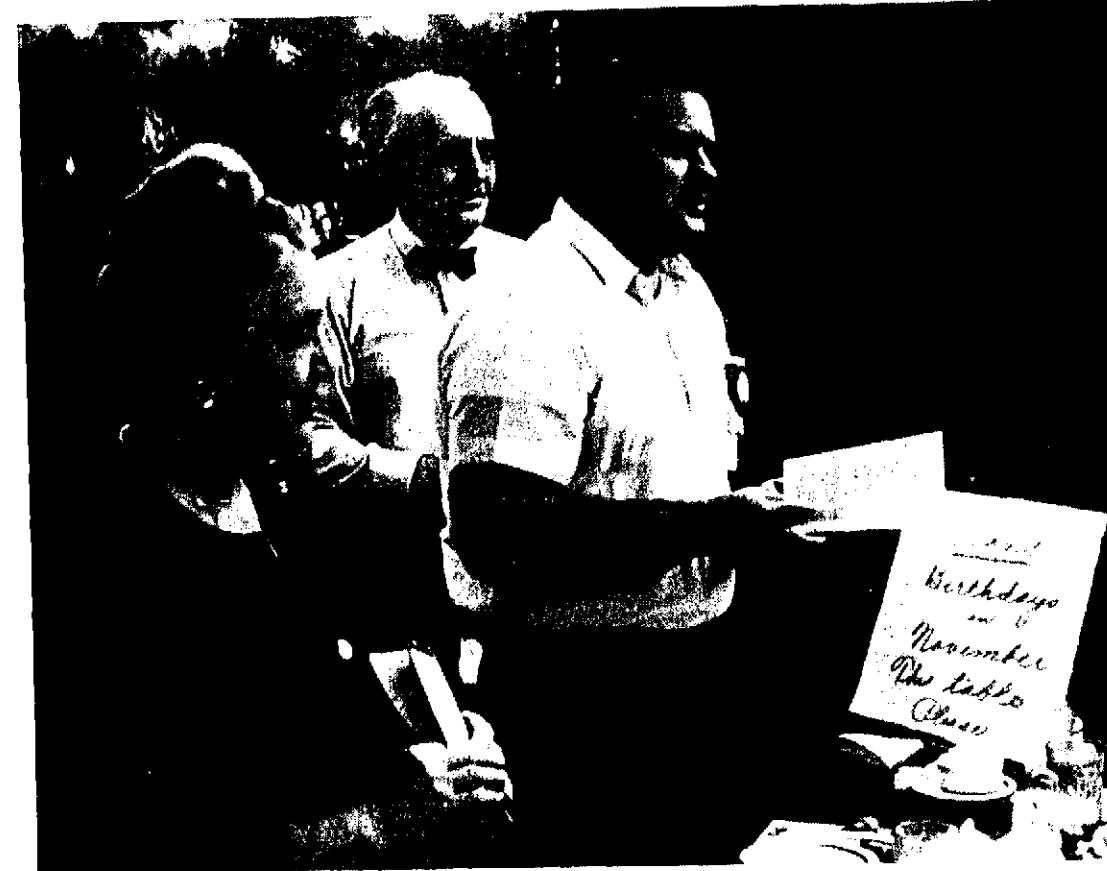

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Murray D. Lincoln, 74, founder of one of the nation's largest insurance businesses and an internationally known spokesman for the farm cooperative movement, died Monday. Lincoln and other Ohio Farm Bureau Federation leaders in 1926 organized their own auto insurance company to provide lower insurance rates for farmers. Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance changed its name to Nationwide Mutual Insurance Co. in 1955.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Harold W. Carlisle, 56, assistant to publisher Preston Wolfe of the Columbus Dispatch, died Monday after a long illness.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Frank Morris, 59, veteran state capital correspondent for the Detroit Free Press and the old Detroit Times, died Monday of cancer.

Wednesday's Blast End of Gemini Road

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Gemini series reaches the end of the road Wednesday when the Gemini 12 astronauts blast off on a four-day mission which may determine man's physical limitations in space.

Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. spent today reviewing their flight plan and talking with Gemini officials as launch crews prepared for the double liftoff.

An Atlas is to thunder skyward at 2:16 p.m. (EST) to boost an Agena satellite into orbit as a rendezvous target. A Titan 2 is to hurl the astronauts into space at 3:55 p.m.

The afternoon launchings were determined by three factors: lighting conditions required for the rendezvous; to avoid high radiation when Aldrin pokes his head outside the spacecraft at an altitude of 400 miles; and to place the astronauts in position Saturday to photograph a total eclipse of the sun over South America.

"Men and machinery are ready," a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported.

The flight will close out the highly successful program which has tested all the techniques that American astronauts will use on Apollo man-to-moon flights. The first earth orbital flight of a three-man Apollo ship is scheduled early next year.

Highlights of the Gemini 12 mission will be a third-orbit rendezvous and linkup with the Agena, practicing many maneuvers that Apollo astronauts must make during their return trip from the moon, three work sessions outside the spacecraft by Aldrin, and photography of the eclipse and of a sodium cloud to be released high above the earth by a French rocket launched from Algeria.

The extravehicular activity by Aldrin will be the most important goal of the flight. The 36-year-old former Korean combat pilot is to spend nearly five hours performing tasks outside during a space walk and two stand-up exercises in which he'll extend the upper half of his body into space.

While performing simple tasks and pacing himself with frequent rests, Aldrin will attempt to determine what problems face a man trying to work in a vacuum in a pressurized space suit.

America's last three space walkers all had trouble during their excursions, primarily because of difficulty maintaining position in the weightless world. Two of the walks were cut short when the astronauts became fatigued doing simple tasks. The third was halted early because of a shortage of spacecraft fuel.

Air Strike Explodes Entire Jungle

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
OVER TAY NINH PROVINCE, South Viet Nam (AP) — The camouflaged jet fighter-bomber leveled off near treetop, spewing a shower of round, brown objects.

In the howling wake of the F100 Super Sabre jet, the close-packed green jungle exploded.

From the cockpit of this "bird dog," an Air Force forward air controller and this reporter watched the deadly cluster bombs hit home with a spray of killer pellets.

"That was just great," exulted a voice on the spotter plane's sputtering radio. It was the commander of a U.S. infantry battalion deployed around the edges of the expanse of jungle. The controller, Air Force Capt. David Halvorsen of Montevideo, Minn., said a battalion of perhaps 500 Viet Cong hardcore regulars was hiding under the heavy tree canopy.

His mission, and that of the fighter-bombers whose fire he directed was to soften up that battalion with high explosive, antipersonnel and napalm ordnance.

This was one corner of the battle of Tay Ninh Province which began last Thursday in a region long a Communist stronghold.

Nothing could be seen of the Communist soldiers shielded by layers of tropical growth 1,500 feet below the circling "bird dog."

But the U.S. operation commander — "Atlas 6" — was sure the Reds were there. U.S. infantrymen of the 196th Brigade had made contact.

Within three hours, U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter bombers loosed four air strikes on this mile-square patch of jungle.

With purple, yellow and red smoke markers to guide them, the F100s screamed in one at a time, crisscrossed the tree covered with their bombs, then climbed into the lowering afternoon sun.

"A little bit to the right," Halvorsen coaxed into his microphone. "A little bit to the right of the smoke."

That's just where the next plane dumped its load, leaving behind a tall pillar of white smoke.

Next came the planes with napalm, the jellied gasoline that incinerates all it touches.

"Do you want this in any particular place?" a Super Sabre pilot asked.

"Generally on that trail we've been shooting over," Halvorsen replied.

In a moment, an F100 in mottled green and tan battle dress streaked low over the trail. Behind it, great sheets of red-orange flames engulfed trees, bushes and grass.

Halvorsen's job was done for the day.

Tomorrow, it would be up to the infantry.

Rebel Activity Up on Border of Zambia

By DENNIS REDMONT
LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Rebel activity has sharply increased in Angola, Portugal's richest African territory, with a three-pronged attack on its borders. The calm, which set in after Portugal quashed the rebellion of 1961, has been broken by the sound of mortars on the Zambian frontier, the chatter of machine guns in the northern enclave of Cabinda and by more frequent ambushes in the unruly north.

Portugal, which exerts control over chunks of Africa 23 times the size of the mother country, has named a tough 46-year-old lieutenant colonel to take charge. Camilo R. Vaz, who, in 1961, commanded an infantry regiment of Portugal's 40,000 Angola troops, takes office as governor this month. He served five years in Vige, the kernel province of rebel resistance.

Vaz will be directly responsible to Premier Antonio Salazar for the fortunes of Angola, an area that yields oil, diamonds, coffee, sugar, tobacco and cotton.

Vaz's toughest military problem lies in the eastern part of Angola, a wedge of rolling hills and small brush jutting into Zambia. Defense Minister Gomes de Araujo announced last month that Portuguese troops and artillery were being sent to the border after the opening of "a third front."

Rebels have made incursions deep into Angola. A recent army communique said that two persons were murdered along the Benguela railway in Vila Lus, 25 miles from the Zambian border.

The terrorists are apparently agitating along the British-owned Benguela railway, which runs from the port of Lobito to the heart of the Congo-Katanga district through Zambia. It is the shortest outlet for copper, aluminum, manganese, cobalt, zinc and iron ores of the region. Portuguese officials say the rebels will fall short of cutting the railway since such action would handicap their base country, Zambia.

WILL ARKANSAS CRUSADER WIRGES GO TO JAIL?

Last February a jury sentenced the editor of the Morrilton Democrat to three years at hard labor in the Arkansas State Penitentiary. The charge: perjury. This is the latest of a series of misfortunes suffered because Eugene H. Wirges leveled charges of corruption against the political bosses of Conway County, a solidly entrenched political machine. And under the lead of Sheriff Marlin Hawkins the machine has counter-attacked vigorously, making full use of its strong ties to the state administration. (County leaders collected the money for Gov. Orval Faubus' filing free in 1964 and gave it to him in a potato sack). Is the "Wirges matter" just an Arkansas affair? Or are such basic principles as freedom of the press and the right to a fair trial at stake? Read Trevor Armbrister's searching article in the November 19 issue of The Saturday Evening Post. HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The role has been changed from Prof. Higgins to Dr. Dolittle, but the manner is the same — polished, urbane, engagingly haughty.

Rex Harrison has exchanged phonetics for the company of animals in "Dr. Dolittle," his first Hollywood film since his Oscar-winning "My Fair Lady." Like the latter, the new film is an expensive — $14 million — musical in which the British actor talk-sings his numbers.

"MFL" put Harrison through a succession of drawing rooms in which he was surrounded by Cecil Beaton finery. "Dr. Dolittle" finds him as the hero of the Hugh Lofting children's tales, a man who talks to animals.

Most actors place animals only slightly below children on the list of fellow players they detest working with. But Harrison views the four-legged and feathered performers with his usual aplomb.

"Really, I get along quite well with all the beasts," he commented one steaming day at the 20th Century-Fox ranch in Malibu Canyon. Stripped to the waist, the actor was coolly enjoying a cigar after his lunch.

"Most of the animals have been quite cooperative, within their particular limits," he said. Harrison said the most difficult time came when he played scenes inside his house with 300 animals, many of them untethered.

Complicating the scene was a song which Harrison had to deliver in the house with 300 animals that declined to react on cue. In "Dr. Dolittle" as in "MFL," the actor performs his songs "live." This is in contrast to the usual procedure for film musicals, in which the numbers are recorded first and then lyrics are mouthed by the performers to the playback soundtrack.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Beauty contests — or "pageants," as they are now called — are a staple of television entertainment.

Currently there are six or seven which annually are broadcast as network specials and, more often than not, wind up at the top of the ratings lists.

Oldest and most popular is, of course, the September "Miss America Pageant," whose enormous ratings undoubtedly stimulated the others. There is also the "Miss Universe" contest and its preliminary, "Miss U.S.A."

All feature good-looking girls of college age.

Then there are the beauty pageants of the younger set — "America's Junior Miss" and "Miss Teen-age America." Last April there was also something called "Miss Teen-Age International," but it was a minor fiasco and may not become a TV institution like the others.

Sometimes adult viewers wonder if all the pressures, lime-light and, for most, final disappointment, are good for them.

Allen Ludden who has served as host on the "Miss Teen-age America Pageant" for the past five years and is the father of two teen-age daughters does not believe they are harmful.

"I think that it could be a horrendous experience for some girls," he conceded. "But for those girls who get to the finals, I am certain that it is, as they keep saying, a beautiful, exciting thing they remember all their lives."

Ludden said that "happily, neither of my own girls is interested in that sort of thing," but he insists that any girl who reaches the finals is enjoying it.

Ludden said that he was "not especially defending the principle, but I am defending the magic of the pageant."

"From their arrival for the finals until they leave, they have a marvelous time. They are treated with great respect and there has never been any vulgarity."

The finals, live, will be broadcast Saturday night on CBS.

ABC on Dec. 19 will start a daytime contest, "Dream Girl of '67," which will feature on a five-a-week basis an elimination contest for "the most marriageable girl in the United States."

Knit a Classy Ski Fashion

By JUDY LOVE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Winter is the season of the sweater, and your knitting needles can win fashion trophies in any winter sport.

The ski sweater you knit is a relative newcomer to the world of winter sports. At the turn of the century, sports costumes were slaves to the fashion of the day. A woman's skill in skating and skiing was limited by ankle-length skirts and fitted jackets.

Gradually the trend was reversed and sports began to influence fashion. Knickers and riding breeches with matching jackets became respectable fashions for skiing in the early 1900s, and the ski costume later came into its own with long, full slacks and jackets. In the mid-1950s ski slacks were streamlined for action, and color brightened the winter sports scene in richly patterned, bulky-knit sweaters.

For your favorite snow man, knit a he-man pullover with a two-color border pattern. The bright Scandinavian design gives a bold, outdoorsy look to classic crewneck styling. For yourself, try the built-in richness of Erin-inspired design. The rugged texture of big-needle yarn is emphasized by a stand-up popcorn pattern. The raglan-styled pullover has a wide collar that zips down into a V-neck.

Whether you enjoy winter sports on the slopes or from a spectator's point of view, your knit-by-hand ski sweaters are fashion-right for the great outdoors.

If you would like knitting instructions, ask for Sweater S102 and send 50 cents to STITCHIN' TIME, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to include your own Zip Code.

Knit Knacks

Do check the dye lot number on each skein of yarn for your garment. Variations in the color of yarn from different dye lots are slight, but if you're a wise knitter, you should always be certain that every skein of yarn to be used in your handknit garment is exactly the same shade or dye lot.

Don't knit a knot into your garment if you can possibly avoid doing so. When you join a new ball of yarn, do so at the beginning of a row. Try to join the yarns at a seam edge. This means that the ends can be darned into the seam when you sew the garment together.

Place the side edges of your garment together in a flat position when sewing seams. Sew on the wrong side and stretch the seams slightly as you go to keep them as elastic as the rest of your garment.

WEATHER EYE: Doing something about the weather usually means checking up on it daily. Outdoor thermometer in a weather-resistant Tenite butyrate plastic case registers present temperature and has movable tabs to tell highest and lowest temperatures reached since their last setting. An indicator also follows the rise in warmth or dips in coolness. Approximately $12.50.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bittel

DOUBLE CROSS

Dear Helen: My boy friend called me up last Saturday and said he had to work so would I mind if we cancelled our date. I said it was okay.

That same day my best girl friend asked if she could borrow my necklace to wear on a date that evening. I let her.

Monday she was all shook because she had lost my necklace, but it wasn't expensive so I calmed her down. They were fake pearls.

Friday I went out with my steady. I dropped an earring in his car and reaching around under the seat to find it, I pulled out my necklace!

I slipped it in my purse quick because I didn't know what to say. I almost felt like throwing it away.

And now I don't know what to do. Have you ever been in a fix where you don't want to know the truth because you're afraid it will make you awfully unhappy? — LOSING TWO FRIENDS?

Dear LTF: Many times, honey. But you are just as unhappy, not knowing. There's an outside chance you haven't been double-crossed. Perhaps your steady lent his car to your girl friend's date, or . . . ?

Wear the necklace in front of them both and tell them where you found it. And let's hope the explanation isn't as fake as the pearls! — H.

Dear Helen: We want to give a friend of ours a World War II German helmet to complete his surfer outfit. Where can we get one? You probably know this is part of surfer gear these days and doesn't have any bad meaning—like they tried to pin on the iron surfer cross—OPERATION G.H.

Dear O.G.H.: You know this, and perhaps I know this (at least I know most teenage surfers aren't Nazis), but look friend isn't the surfer image bad enough without topping it off with a German helmet?

. . . Or do you kids enjoy getting yourselves blasted as "subversives"? — H.

P. S. You'll find what you're looking for in the advertising section of most hot rod magazines, but may I suggest you switch to a seahorse for your emblem, and wear abalone shells on your heads? You'll attract just as much notice but not quite so many brickbats. — H.

BROTHER BOTHERED

Dear Helen: My brother is almost 17 and has never gone out with a girl. Then he has the nerve to tell my folks that all the boys I want to date are sex fiends with bad reputations. When I get mad and call him names, my Dad gives me a long lecture about how HE never dated until he was 18, but that's not true: my Mom told me he went out at 17.

My brother says I'm too young to date, except with a couple of his "trustworthy" friends who are big loudmouths. My Dad sides with him.

I have two questions: Does my brother have a problem? He goes out for football and basketball, but not with girls. And how can I date the popular guys when my brother is such a know-it-all? — OVERPROTECTED SISTER

Dear Sister: I'd guess your brother is a perfectly normal fellow who knows girls can be expensive time-wasters (for a letterman). A great many high school boys share his point of view which is why so many high school girls sit home on Saturday nights.

He also knows, from hearing the locker room talk, which "popular guys" aren't to be trusted with his sister. When you prove you can take care of yourself, he'll stop with the overprotection. . . I hope. It may take a while! — H.

Years ago when we were little advertising was just beginning to reach the public in usual ways, we remember all, IVORY SOAP. One of our older brothers used to have a bedtime story and he would lower his voice and repeat, "It floats, it floats, it floats," until some one of us would no longer contain ourselves and would ask, "What floats?" and of course the answer was, "IVORY SOAP!"

The thing that brings this to mind now is, nothing more on the new fall and holiday fashions. The little dress of today, which is taking the market by storm, simply floats. It floats on the shoulder, it slips down the body with graceful motion whether it is wool, Moh, chiffon, knitted fabric or any other material.

It may take a bit of trying on to get used to this drift in fashion but once it hits you, . . . you will have no other.

Just try the Pastel Jersey by Jonathan Logan. It has a small bandaway collar and a simple bodice that widens just below the armholes and gracefully flares to the hemline. It has a belt, but you will never wear it. It looks just great with white gloves or dress-up and black for city-dancing. The price is $23.00 and it looks like a million! Try on the Jo Juniors crepe with chiffon sleeves that fasten at the wrist, $20.00. Or the Mix Modes lace knit in that new plum shade that is plum beautiful, we can't tell you what it is that makes it like it does, but you will see for yourself when it just floats over your body. . . $26.00

Fort Smith Holds First in State Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fort Smith Northside solidified its grip on first place today in the Associated Press Arkansas high school football poll, but last year's champion, North Little Rock, issued a few storm warnings in rolling into second place.

Northside received nine first place votes and 144 points from the panel of 15 sports writers and broadcasters. North Little Rock got the other six votes for the top spot for 127 points.

Points are tabulated on the basis of 10 for first, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc.

The two powerhouses collide at Fort Smith Friday night in a game that could decide this year's poll winner. However, each has one game following their meeting.

Little Rock Hall retained third place and Fort Smith Southside moved into fourth. Texarkana, second a week ago, fell to fifth after losing to Southside.

Rounding out the top ten in order were Fayetteville, Crossett, Little Rock Central, Springdale and Sheridan.

In the lower classification rankings, Crossett retained its lead in Class AA as did Brinkley in Class A and Norphlet in Class B.

Results of the poll, with first place votes in parentheses and total points at right:

1. FS Northside (9) 144
2. North Little Rock 114
3. Texarkana 79
4. Crossett 57
5. LR Central 46
6. Springdale 24
7. Sheridan 15

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Benton, Brinkley, Conway, De Witt, Norphlet and Pine Bluff.

- CLASS AA
1. Crossett (14) 46
  2. Sheridan 25
  3. Benton (1) 15

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Conway, De Witt, Stuttgart and Sublaco.

- CLASS A
1. Brinkley (12) 40
  2. McGee (2) 26
  3. FS St. Anne's (1) 18

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Atkins, McCrory and Osceola.

- CLASS B
1. Norphlet (12) 42
  2. Parkin (3) 33
  3. Holly Grove 13

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Hartford and Mineral Springs.

Cardinals Lose Star Quarterback

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Coach Charley Winner is doing a quick repair job on his National Football League Eastern Division leaders because, he says, injuries have knocked out "the hub of our offense."

Quarterback Charley Johnson, who holds four career team passing records, is lost for the season with a torn right knee ligament. He undergoes knee surgery today.

Center Bob DeMarco, who played in the NFL's 1965 Pro Bowl, will be sidelined for at least four weeks with a partially torn right knee ligament.

"It can't help but hurt when you lose the two men who put the ball in play for you," said Winner. "But we will be working this week to remedy the situation before the game next Sunday with the Steelers at Pittsburgh."

Johnson and DeMarco were hurt in the 20-17 St. Louis victory Sunday over the Giants in New York.

Irv Goode, a regular offensive guard who usually centers on extra points and field goal attempts, came in for DeMarco.

Second string quarterback Terry Nofsinger entered the game after Johnson's injury and quickly threw a scoring strike to Prentice Gault.

"I think Terry will be able to do the job for us and Goode always plays well no matter where he is," said Winner.

Nofsinger is the only quarterback on the roster now. But Jim Bakken, the field goal and extra point specialist, played there while in college.

Seymour Was Always for Reaching Out

BERKLEY, Mich. (AP) — Jim Seymour, Notre Dame's talented sophomore end, has been reaching for things ever since his fingers were long enough to hold on.

"We were always finding him on top of the refrigerator or someplace," recalls his mother, Mrs. Bart Seymour.

The Seymours, including four other sons and a daughter, live in a comfortable home in this Detroit suburb.

Seymour, a 6-foot-4, 190-pounder, has combined with sophomore quarterback Terry Hanratty to become one of the most exciting fighting Irish passing combinations in Notre Dame history.

Seymour has been sidelined since he suffered a sprained ankle in No. 1 ranked Notre Dame's 38-0 victory over Oklahoma Oct. 22.

Up to that point, he had caught 34 passes for 675 yards and five touchdowns.

But back home in Berkley, Jim is just a boy who strums a guitar, bakes cookies and plays with the neighborhood children.

"One of my brothers once told me he didn't think any of our boys would make very good football players because they were too gentle," says Mrs. Seymour.

Mrs. Seymour described Jim as an average student who works hard.

"He was an active boy even as a baby," she recalled. "Always stretching and reaching for things. His left arm is scarred from where he once pulled a pan of boiling water off the stove."

Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian has said Seymour's sprained ankle isn't serious. But he has kept him on the sidelines, probably saving him for a Nov. 19 clash with No. 2 ranked Michigan State at East Lansing, Mich.

Porkers Climb 2 Notches in Nat'l Poll

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The latest election day in the Associated Press' major-college football poll still finds Notre Dame holding a relatively small lead over Michigan State while Alabama is an onrushing third.

Alabama, the national titleholder in 1964 and 1965, was among five teams to gain ground in the latest poll based on games through last Saturday. The Tide replaced UCLA in the No. 3 spot while Nebraska advanced to fourth, Arkansas to sixth, Southern California to seventh and Georgia to ninth.

The Bulldogs, 27-10 victors over Florida, replaced the Gators in the first 10. UCLA tumbled to eighth while Georgia Tech held fifth place and Tennessee 10th.

Notre Dame and Michigan State face each other on the Spartans' field on Nov. 19.

The Irish collected 32 first-place votes to the Spartans' 10 in the most recent balloting by a national panel of 43 sports writers and broadcasters. However, on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second etc., Notre Dame leads by a mere 25 points, 418 to 393.

Notre Dame trounced Pittsburgh 40-0 and Michigan State overwhelmed Iowa 56-7 last Saturday.

Alabama accumulated 333 points after blanking Louisiana State 21-0, Nebraska, Arkansas and Southern California each advanced two places.

The Cornhuskers beat Kansas 24-13. Arkansas whipped Rice 31-20 and USC downed California 35-9. Georgia Tech just managed to get past Virginia, 14-13.

UCLA, upset by Washington 16-3, slipped five notches. Tennessee whipped Chattanooga, 28-10. The Volunteers trail ninth-place Georgia by only three points in the voting.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, and total points:

1. Notre Dame (32) 418
2. Michigan St. (10) 393
3. Alabama 333
4. Nebraska 270
5. Georgia Tech 231
6. Arkansas (1) 188
7. Southern Cal 144
8. UCLA 142
9. Georgia 71
10. Tennessee 68

Kansas City's Western Division leaders are No. 1 in total offense with a pickup of 357.4 a game and first in rushing offense with a 159.0 average while New York is tops in passing offense with 238.8 yards a game.

Defensively, Oakland is No. 1 over-all, allowing only 259.4 a game and first in passing with a 133.9 a game mark. Boston is tops against rushing, permitting only 72.0 a game.

The giant offensive tackle's request that the U.S. Supreme Court reconsider its refusal to review a lower court ruling to against him was denied in Washington Monday.

Apparently his last chance to avoid going to the Houston Oilers of the American Football League, for whom he has said he would not play, rested with a state court here.

Dist. Judge Owen Giles has set a hearing Thursday on a Dallas club request for an injunction against Neely. The suit would prevent Neely from playing with any club except Dallas, whereas the Houston action, in federal court at Oklahoma City, would bar him from competing with any team except the Oilers.

Neely signed a contract late in 1964 to play with Houston and in January of 1965 he signed one with Dallas. He has played with Dallas ever since. He has contended the Houston contract was not enforceable.

Patton Led Attack on Spurrier

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
George Patton wasn't driving a tank in Florida's backfield last Saturday but you'll never convince Gator quarterback Steve Spurrier of that.

Patton is the Georgia tackle who led the charge on Spurrier and sparked the Bulldogs' defensive unit in Georgia's 27-10 victory. He was named The Associated Press' Lineman of the Week for his job.

A solid 215-pound senior, Patton is variously known as The General and Tom Sawyer by his teammates. He was just plain Patton to Spurrier, one of the country's leading quarterbacks.

An All America choice as a junior last year, Patton was named after the World War II tank commander.

Patton, a soft-spoken giant from Tusculuma, Ala., is popular with his teammates and his easy going, country boy manner led to the Tom Sawyer nickname.

Coach Vince Dooley said the Georgia pass rush, which was led by Patton, was the key to the Bulldogs' big Southeastern Conference victory over Spurrier and Florida.

HE JUST MIGHT SCRATCH THE SURFACE

Between you'n'me

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOUSTON—(NEA)—Can Cassius Clay, or whatever his name is, take a punch to the gizzard?

Has he got the heart to stay with it after he gets his pretty face mugged up?

At least, the little divertimento between him and Cleveland Williams scheduled for the air-conditioned Houston Astrodome Nov. 14 offers the possibility of an answer to these questions. It shouldn't be like the recent Clay fights when he played the picador sticking the banderillos into the dehorned bulls (George Chuvalo, Brian London, Karl Mildner, etc.).

Williams has authentic credentials as a puncher. He has knocked out 51 men in a career that stretches back officially 15 years but actually began four years before that, when he was 14 years old and fought six professional fights before authorities discovered he was under age.

He hit Sonny Liston "harder than any man I know" in the days before Sonny discovered it was a lot more comfortable under the ring lights in a supine position after a light tap on the jaw. Ernie Terrell, Mr. Octopus, has been flattened just once in his life, and that came on a left hook to the belly, followed by a left hook to the jaw, both delivered by the Big Cat, as Williams is called.

Unlike Liston, the Cat should stay in the ring long enough to rake the champion a time or two and test his courage under fire. Any man who can take a .357 magnum slug to the belly, as Williams did two years ago in an encounter with a Texas state highway patrolman, and come up fighting, should be equipped to handle Clay's pitty-pats, delivered like a nervous bride using a powder puff.

Williams can be had. Liston knocked him out twice and, a dozen years ago, Bob Satterfield (a familiar figure in boxing's television age) stretched Williams in the third round. Except for that strange Liston debacle in Lewiston, Maine, and a flurry against a completely ineffectual London, Clay has never mesmerized anybody with his punch—with his mouth, yes.

For the first time since he won the championship, Cassius will be in the ring with a man his own size, too. Williams gives away an inch in height, but he weighs about the same as the Louisville Lip, outreaches him by four inches and exhales from a chest that expands four inches larger than the Lip's lung box.

These are significant match-ups because Clay has used his size as a psychological lever against opponents like Floyd Patterson. Where Clay has an undeniable edge is in age and speed. He's nine years younger, at 24, than Williams, who is getting his first chance to fight for a championship. He's also swifter and a better ring general.

But boxing people have long suspected there's a bit of geezer in Clay. There's too much emphasis on the unmarked face, on the pretty boy looks to correlate with the image of a tough fighter. Henry Cooper, the bloody (literally) Englishman, is the only man who has had Clay in trouble during his pro career. The bell helped Cassius then. His nimble feet have knelled the alert signal ever since. Clay dances away from danger, holding his hands low in obvious disdain of his opponents, always a step ahead of them.

What'll happen, though, when he sees a little blood—his own? A tableau persists from the night he won the title in Miami Beach as Sonny Liston decided he couldn't lift his left arm any longer after six rounds.

Just a couple of rounds earlier, Clay had wanted to stay in his corner and forfeit the fight because some foreign substance had gotten into his eyes. So Angelo Dundee, his trainer, got him by the seat of his pants and shoved him into the center of the ring at the timekeeper's gong. Thus reinforced, Clay went on to outlast Sonny in the Battle of the Reluctant Warriors.

Cassius has grown up a lot since then—physically, at least. Obviously, he should be the favorite against Williams because he has the actions of a better fighter, the confidence of a champion and a distinct edge in youthful vigor.

But last time we looked, Angelo Dundee was practicing his shove. A two-handed one.

A total of 634,398 out-of-town fans attended Braves' games with 905,403 Atlanta residents turning out, the school said.

Notre Dame Takes a Hard Line

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(NEA)—For Kevin Hardy, the school year is nothing more than a blur of reds, grays and greens, a color for each season.

Red for the changing leaves of an Indiana autumn. Gray for the dull, bleak days of winter.

Green for the freshness of a clear, spring day.

Each is significant for the Notre Dame athlete from Oakland, Calif.

In the fall, he is an All-American defensive tackle; in the winter, a center on the basketball team; in the spring, the rightfielder on the baseball team.

"All of them," Kevin said emphatically, "I like them all—equally."

It is in football, however, that the 6-5, 275-pounder excels. Extremely agile for his size, he controls everything that moves his way, be it to the inside or the outside.

"The thing that separates Kevin from the others," says Johnny Ray, the Notre Dame defensive coach, "is that he doesn't try to get by on his size. He uses his speed and his agility."

"Playing the other sports has helped, but he's basically a football player."

Kevin is the key to the Notre Dame defense which has scored three "official" and one "unofficial" shutouts this year.

"Navy's touchdown against us," he said matter-of-factly, "was the result of a blocked punt. We consider it a shutout for the defense."

Navy's coach, Bill Elias, wasn't in the mood to argue the point after his Midshipmen had been beaten, 31-7, by Notre Dame.

"Hardy has to be the best," Elias said. "He and that end next to him (Alan Page) control a game."

Kevin's performance this season has been better than expected. After making All-American as a sophomore, he missed the 1965 season due to a ruptured disk in his back.

"It was horrible having to miss the whole year," Kevin said. "To be sitting back in South Bend knowing you could be helping is a terrible feeling."

Last August he reported back to school at 295 pounds which meant he had to lose some of the excess weight. "That's not hard for me," he said. "I sweat it off quite easily. My record is 21 pounds in one day."

John Ray smiled at Kevin's analysis.

"It still was a pretty rough September for him," John said. "Anybody out a whole year has to expect a tough time."

After the football season, Kevin will switch to basketball and in the spring to baseball. It means a busy year.

"I have a 2.5 (B-) average in business," he said, "but sometimes it's a struggle to keep up. I do a lot of work on the road trips. I have to."

As a basketball player, Kevin worries about one thing: being branded a "hatchet man."

"I actually try to stay away from contact as much as possible in basketball," he says, "because I know what they'll start to shout as soon as I hit someone."

In baseball, he thinks of himself "more as a punch hitter" than a power hitter.

"I had a poor start two years ago because our first game came two days after basketball season ended," he said. "I didn't even take batting practice and I went something like 0-for-16. After that I hit .333 for the rest of the season."

When school ends, Kevin heads back to California and the golf course where he plays nearly 18 holes each weekday. Baseball consumes the weekend.

"No," he said. "I don't get tired. I've been doing the same thing for as long as I can remember."

Turf's All-Star Team

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Football and basketball have their All-American performers and baseball's two major leagues have their All-Star teams. If thoroughbred racing had such a distinction as an All-Star team it might read like this:

Trainer—Edward A. Neloy. Owners—Mrs. H. C. Phipps, son Ogden Phipps and grandson Dinny Phipps.

Jockey—Braulio Baeza. The star in the string of 34 Phipps horses under Eddie Neloy's care is Buckpasser, a colt to be voted 3-year-old champion and horse of the year.

When Buckpasser won the Travers Stakes at Saratoga in August he became the first 3-year-old to earn $1 million.

When Buckpasser won the two-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct on Nov. 26 for his 12th straight victory he ran his earnings to $1,218,874.

In March there were fears that Buckpasser, after winning the betless Flamingo at Hialeah, might never race again. The son of Tom Fool suffered a quarter crack. Neloy had to take him out of training. But tender care brought the Ogden Phipps colt back to the races in June when he won stakes in Wilmington, Del., and Chicago within seven days.

The success of Buckpasser has enabled Neloy to become the first trainer in history to saddle horses that brought home more than $2 million in purses in one year. He broke the record of $1,350,334 set last year by Bill Winfrey, the trainer Neloy succeeded.

The aptly named Successor figures to add more glory to the Phipps-Neloy-Baeza combination on Nov. 12 in the rich Garden State at Cherry Hill, N. J., if

BUCKPASSER
The Horse

Successor wins the Garden State he probably will be named 2-year-old champion in the Thoroughbred Racing Association poll.

Prior to the Champagne at Aqueduct on Oct. 15 Successor was rated behind Dr. Fager and Bold Ruler among the juveniles.

But Successor, a late-footed Bold Ruler colt, beat Dr. Fager going away in the Champagne. It was Dr. Fager's first setback in five races. He will not tackle Successor in the Garden State, having been retired for the year.

Of the 34 Neloy-trained horses only one, Mighty Stroke, has failed to win money. Seventeen of his horses have accounted for 38 stakes. And most of the winners have been ridden by Panamanian Braulio Baeza, an oddity in itself, because Baeza has no contract with Neloy or the Phipps family.

Baeza is under contract to John W. Galbreath, owner of Darby Dan Farm and the Pittsburgh Pirates. When the year began it looked like Baeza would have to ride Galbreath's Grandstark against Buckpasser. But Grandstark sustained a leg injury and had to be retired. This enabled Baeza to give first call on his services to the Phipps family and Neloy.

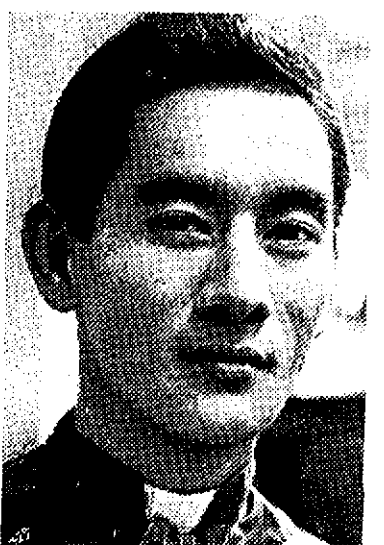

If Successor gets the TRA 2-year-old crown to join Buckpasser's two titles, it will mark the first time that one trainer has gained three awards since 1952 when Bill Winfrey trained for Alfred G. Vanderbilt. That was the year of Native Dancer, American and 2-year-old champion, and the year Vanderbilt's Next Move won the crown for filles over three years old.

The Los Angeles Dodgers beat all but two National League teams in their season series. They divided 18 games with both the Giants and Pirates.

CORA TURNER

BRENDA WILLIAMS

Cora Turner and Brenda Williams participated in a state-wide contest sponsored by the Business Education Teachers of the Arkansas Teachers Association which convened in Hot Springs on November 2-4.

Cora, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Turner received first place award in Typing. She is a member of the junior class, girl scout, choir, band and plans to attend college and major in music.

Brenda, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt Williams received second place award in Shorthand II. She is a member of the senior class, choir, honor society, senior girl scout, cheerleader, junior counselor and plans to attend college with interest in the field of political science.

This is the second consecutive year that Yerger students have participated in the contest. Patricia Maxwell, now a senior won first place award in Shorthand II in 1965.

Mets and As Show Gains

NEW YORK (AP)—Would you believe the 1966 Kansas City Athletics and the New York Mets, both under new managers last season, showed baseball's greatest gains over the previous year?

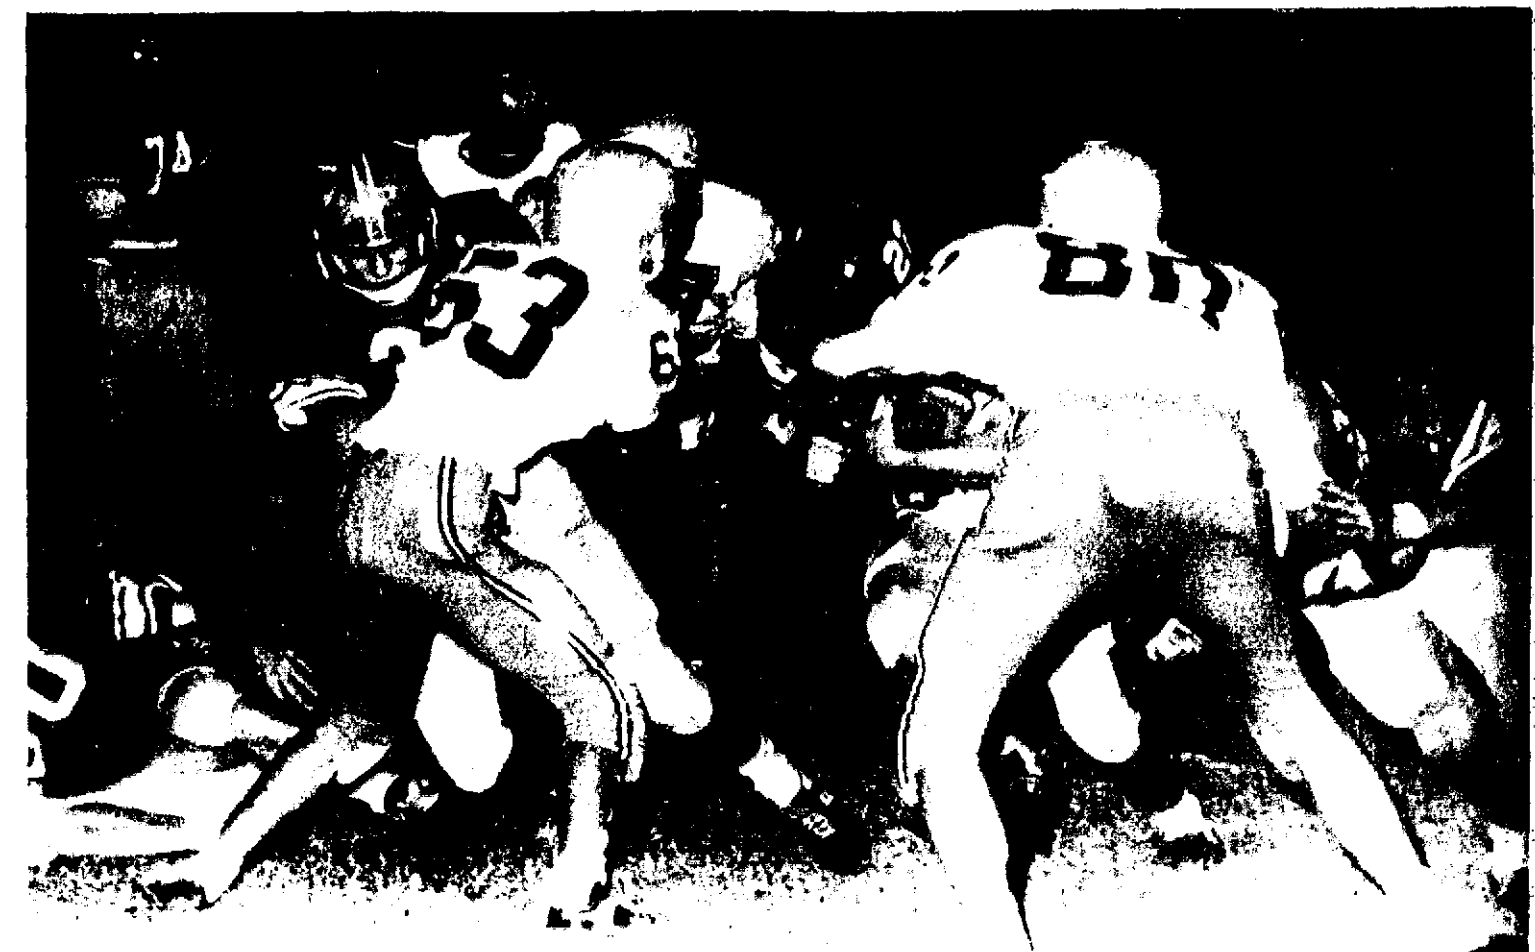

Both teams were 10th and last in 1965. The 1965 As' finished 43 games behind first place, Minnesota in the American League. This year the As', under Al Dark, finished sixth only 23 games off the lead.

The Mets of 1965 finished 47 games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League race. This year they finished ninth, 28½ games back of first place.

The Chicago Cubs, under Leo Durocher, wound up last this year, 36 games out of first place. In 1965 they were eighth, 25 games out. Cincinnati, eight games out and fourth in 1965, finished seventh and 18 games back in 1966.

In the American League the Minnesota Twins and Chicago White Sox lost ground. In defending the title the Twins finished second, nine games out. The White Sox, second in 1965 by seven games, were 15 games back in fourth place this year.

The New York Yankees suffered the biggest decline in both leagues, dropping from sixth to last place in the American League.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Get your facts first, and then you can distort 'em as you please. —Mark Twain said it.

90th BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION
The 90th birthday of Mrs. Sallie Brown was celebrated in the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E.D. Robinson, 3110 High Street, Little Rock, Ark. October 29, 1966.

Present for the celebration were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter McMurtry and grandson Scotty, Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas McMurtry and granddaughter Monica of Detroit, Michigan; James McMurtry, Little Rock; Mrs. Clara E. Powell, Canton, Mississippi; Mrs. Alcola Wade, Hope. These are sons and daughters. Grandchildren—Miss Martha Robinson, Dillard University, New Orleans, Louisiana; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Mitchell and son Lee III, Warren, Arkansas; Mr. and Mrs. Marlon Pauley and son Howard, Lockesburg, Arkansas; a son-in-law Mr. James Wade, Benton, Arkansas. Numerous friends among whom were Mrs. Thelma Wilson and daughter Cathy of Blevins, Arkansas.

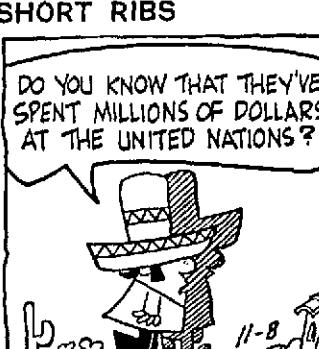

The table was laid with an ivory lace cloth over pink centered with a huge birthday cake. Hot spiced tea, cookies, and cake were served.

Mrs. Brown received many beautiful gifts, flowers and cards. During the celebration, John Thomas pinned an orchid on his mother's shoulder. Pictures were made with a movie camera. She has eight children, twenty-three grandchildren and twenty-five great grandchildren.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Early Thinking Brings Success

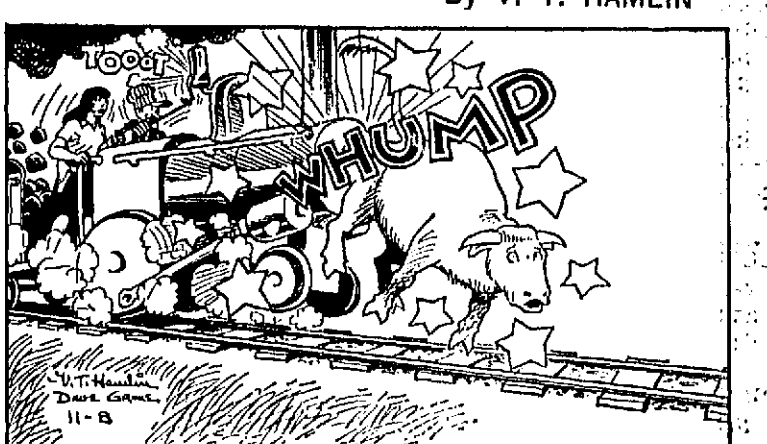

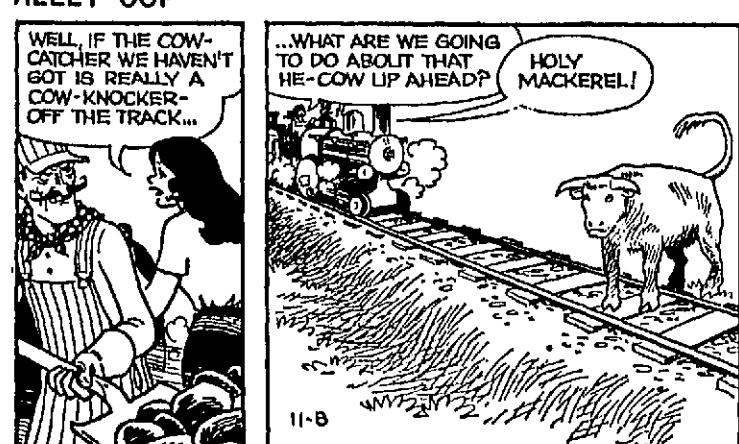

By Oswald & James Jacoby Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Haste makes waste" is an adage that might well have been meant to apply to bridge. We don't recommend slow play but we know that careful planning at the start of play will actually speed up your game since you won't have to waste time later on trying to recover from early carelessness.

South's first thought was to lead a trump at trick two. He could draw trumps with two leads, concede a spade trick and eventually throw two spades on dummy's ace and king of diamonds and ruff the last remaining spade. Then he noted that West might hold all three trumps and that he could guard against this by leading out ace and another spade. He did it and when both opponents followed to the second spade South was able to ruff two spades in dummy and set up his last spade. He never tried to get a discard on a diamond. He didn't need one because he had made his own hand good.

If South had played just one trump he would not have been able to make his contract. If he tried to establish two spade ruffs West would gain the lead with his king of spades and lead a second trump.

It is interesting to note that if West had opened a trump South should still make the hand. He would go after spades. A second trump lead by West would hold South to one spade ruff but he would run off all his trumps and wind up with a diamond-spade squeeze against East.

Johnson Is Facing Ordeals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson faces two ordeals — physical and political — with one just as painful as the other. If the doctors are right, he will have to endure the political one a lot longer.

After some surgery, according to the doctors who minimize its gravity, he should soon be back in good physical shape.

But, according to the polls and tradition, Johnson won't be in as good political condition for the next two years as he was in 1965-66, when his Democrats had overwhelming control of both houses of Congress.

Traditionally — and the polls indicate it is going to happen again in next week's balloting — the party in control of Congress loses some seats in a non-presidential, off-year election like this one.

This doesn't mean the Republicans may gain control of Congress. The Republicans themselves, in their wildest dreams, aren't forecasting that. They're mainly predicting they will pick up some House seats.

If they're right, and they probably are, it simply means the big Democratic majority in Congress will be reduced.

Johnson had great success with this expiring Congress in 1965, less success in 1966 even though the Democrats retain their huge majority in both houses.

Since he suffered troubles and frustrations when his Democrats far outnumbered the Republicans, he can expect even more when there are fewer Democrats to listen to him and more Republicans to challenge him.

On top of that, unless meanwhile something unexpected happens, Johnson will have to continue sweating out the Vietnamese war. The longer it drags on, the more discontent he can expect from Congress and the public.

The doctors decided that, after his Asian trip, he must rest for a while and then have a polyp removed from his throat and repairs made on an abdominal incision that was part of his gall bladder operation last year.

If it hadn't been for this he might have spent the time between now and next Tuesday's elections in a whirlwind speaking campaign to help his Democrats. Whether that would have done any good at this late date is debatable.

Yet, for a master politician like Johnson, this has been a very strange election season.

Johnson had made a few campaign speeches and trips but then, just as the season was reaching its peak, he went off to Manila for a conference about Viet Nam with the leaders of six other nations.

It would seem, if he had his heart set on doing his utmost for the various Democrats in trouble, he would have spent a minimum of time in Manila and then returned here to go on a speaking tour of the country. Instead, he took 17 days to go to Manila, Australia, New Zealand, and Asian countries, even though it's still not clear what good this did for American relations with those countries or for bringing Viet Nam peace nearer.

By itself, this was a very unusual and difficult-to-understand performance by a politician like Johnson in this political time, particularly since the outcome will affect his chances of getting programs through Congress.

Johnson pitched in and made an all-out effort in 1964 when, just as now, all the House seats and one-third of the Senate seats were at stake. But there was a difference between then and now.

In 1964 he had the most important reason of all for pitching in: he was running for the presidency.

This is the first off-year election since he entered the White House that he could have made a supreme effort for his Democrats when he was not directly involved.

He chose not but he has never explained why.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Is there a real balm of Gilead?

A—Yes, balm of Gilead is a resinous substance obtained from the sap of a small evergreen tree found in Arabia and Ethiopia.

Q—What annuity does the United States pay Panama for the use of the Canal Zone?

A—In 1955, the United States raised the annuity to $1,930,000 annually and, among other concessions, agreed to return land no longer needed for canal operations.

Toyland '66

By HELEN HENNESSY
Newspaper Enterprise Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—When spacemen invade your home on Christmas, toy battlesmen throw hand grenades across the breakfast table, a Molotov cocktail lands on the roast turkey and Susie's new doll wets the living room couch, just take an aspirin and resign yourself to Toyland '66.

There's no point in looking back with nostalgia to your own doll that didn't do anything or dad's electric trains. Toys, like fashions, bear the stamp of the era in which we live.

Space suits are simply up-to-date "dress-up" toys. Dad had his cowboy outfit. Grenades and Molotov cocktails are more in keeping with the times than a musket would be. And you wouldn't want an inadequately equipped toy soldier around.

How can a cap gun compare in efficiency with a ray gun? And as for dolls—why have one that just lies around like a lump when you can get one that cries, wets, pouts, teethes or frugs? You can even find one that asks questions in case you don't get enough trouble of that kind from the kids.

The doll crop this season boasts the "realer-than-real" doll. Claimed most realistic is a teething baby with a miserable expression, showing her first tooth.

Cheerful Tearful, another newcomer, has a changeable facial expressions. She smiles, pouts and cries real tears.

There's a whole new group of Mary Poppins-inspired character dolls and literature is represented by a Winnie the Pooh series and a Little Women group. Even our old friend, Raggedy Ann, has been treated to new printed flannel pajamas and matching cap.

Among the stuffed toys is Duchess Turtle, designed for a child to sit astride or use as a pillow. There's a stuffed frog that frugs and he has a stuffed pig friend that polkas. A puppet version of Soupy Sales does the mouse.

Most of the homemaking toys for this season really work. Vacuum cleaners clean up, laundry equipment washes and dries and an "easy bake" oven produces its own honey cakes.

Municipal services are on an upswing in popularity in the truck sector of toyland. A new fire rescue truck of heavy gauge steel has a turbine cab and a round attachment which, without batteries, simulates the purr of a giant motor.

Laughter takes the spotlight in the game sector of Santa's workshop this year, based on the theory that kids need relaxation from the rigors of homework just as dad does from his job. In another era if Johnny was tired from doing homework his mother would have felt he was also too tired to play games. But we live today. A card game, called Bird Brain (just for laughs) is played in a saucer-shaped playing area flanked by 3D birds.

Most strenuous of the new laugh provokers is Twister, a frenetic action game played in stocking feet on a large

Canine Fraternity

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Now that Neiman-Marcus has told the world what this year's His and Hers status Christmas gifts will be—$4,000 bathtubs—we can get on to more important things... like canine gifts.

For your little HIM or HER who has everything, why not a new pair of satin or velvet palazzo pajamas trimmed with mink? For at home lounging, of course. If he's the conservative type, how about a pair of striped flannel pj's with matching nightcap?

If your precious is making the party scene with you, you could order a fur coat to match yours. If you're bedazzled by a bejeweled collar, don't guess at the size. It must fit perfectly.

If the SHE in your canine life is really feminine, she'd adore Chien No. 5, a delightfully scented perfume, or her very own pair of false eyelashes... nothing makes you feel more like a girl. And what could be more individual than her very own nail polish.

If poochie is the type that can't fall asleep on a picket fence, there's always a fancy bed. You have your choice of gilt-trimmed Louis XVI. Early American tester with side curtains or the simple lines of contemporary.

A day of beauty at the local hairdresser is another welcome gift that can be given to a dog-owner friend in the form of a gift certificate.

plastic mat where the players literally tie themselves into knots as they follow spinner directions on how to place their arms and legs.

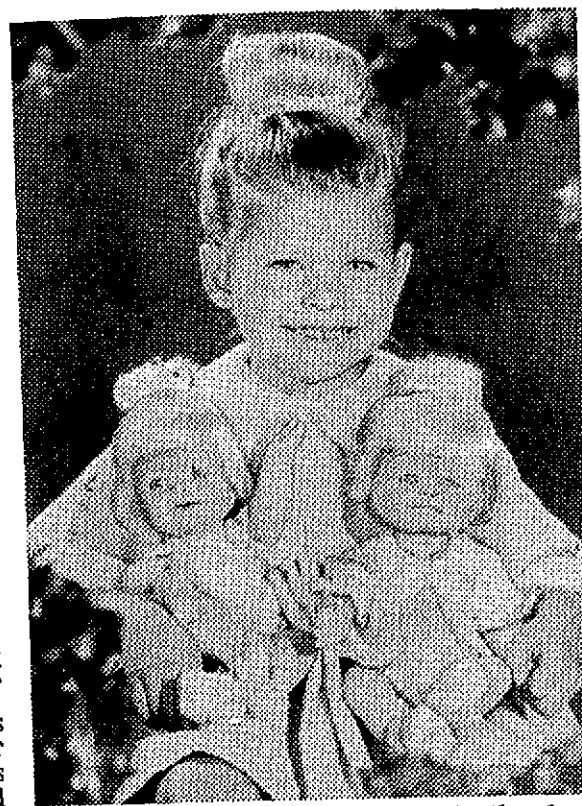

New, too, on the game scene is Goldfinger, played on a base that is a replica of Fort Knox, and Chicken Out, a competitive game keyed to tweaking the tail of a plastic chicken.

Two additions to the "make-and-play" toy category are Creeper People with its own Thingmaker in which imaginative boys and girls can make all sorts of weird-looking fluorescent creatures and a Chocolate Factory that makes real chocolate.

That's not everything. But it's a good part of what you'll find around for Christmas. The new toys are better equipped than their older counterparts, perhaps. But they're still just dolls, trucks, games and toy soldiers.

MUNICIPAL SERVICES are in big favor in toyland's truck parade this Christmas. Here a young policeman directs a new police emergency truck. A bell rings as the truck is moved. Side and back doors open. A side ladder attaches to the extension ladder for rescue work. There is a simulated dome light as well as a hose and reel.

CHEERFUL TEARFUL (left) is the first doll with a changeable facial expression. Raise her left arm and she smiles. Lower it and she pouts. She is 13 inches tall and dressed in a pink water-repellent flannel robe. She cries real tears and wets her diaper, too. Christopher Robin (right) is out of the Walt Disney movie version of Winnie-the-Pooh. With him comes a vinyl Winnie-the-Pooh perched on a tree limb and a record of songs from the film.

MAKE-AND-PLAY toys are enjoying popularity since last year. Newest is the Thingmaker featuring Creeper People. This electric heating unit heats a plastic liquid called Plastiglop that is poured into a mold. After the mold forms the plastic into a head, feet and arms, the object is cooled, decorated and then attached to a pencil or stick. This is by Mattel. Emance chocolate factory (right) produces lip-smacking chocolate bars and holiday bonbons. Tasty flavors are added to a chocolate base which is heated over an electric light bulb-heated cooker.

MOSQUITO IS A NEW KIND of quick-action game in 3D plastic. A mosquito-shaped spinner is ejected from the handle as the player tilts the board, trying to move the mosquito through scoring areas (left). Clock-A-Word (right) will keep adults busy. In a race against time, players reassemble nine unrelated letters into words.

DOWLER'S RECORD BROKEN
CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Boyd Dowler, end for the Green Bay Packers, no longer holds the Wyoming high school record for the 120-yard high hurdles.

In 1954, while a senior at Cheyenne high school, Dowler ran the high hurdles in 14.6 seconds. His record was broken this year by Lew Roney of Laramie, who was timed in 14.3 seconds.

Two Injured in Wreck Here

Ink, Ark. to Get Tracking Station

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ink, Ark., was one of six sites chosen by Western Union Telegraph Co., for a $19.5 million network of earth stations it plans as the first step toward setting up its own communications satellite system.

Ink is about seven miles east of Mena in Polk County. Western Union said in petitions filed Monday with the Federal Communications Commission it planned eventually to have eight earth stations for communicating with its own satellites.

It would own six of the stations and would share ownership of the remaining two in the New York and Los Angeles areas. Construction and operating cost of the Arkansas station would be $4,328,000, and $955,000.

If the FCC approves the plan, Western Union would enter the television business — relaying by satellite television network transmissions from city to city.

Two Accused in Escape

BRASILIA (AP) — Two Brazilian enlisted men have been accused of abetting the escape of two Fort Smith, Ark., men and another man from Richardson, Tex., less than two weeks ago.

Sam Sexton Jr. and Joseph McCutchen of Fort Smith and Joe Truhill of Richardson escaped from their makeshift prison where they had served about eight months of a three-year prison sentence on conviction of smuggling.

Officers here said the enlisted men, Hamilton Correlle de Moraes and Alceu Viana Garret, are accused of letting the trio leave jail to go to a night club. The Americans went to an airfield and flew to the United States.

Decision to Reduce Draft Calls Should Cut Reserve Backlog

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's decision to reduce draft calls over the next four months eventually may solve two pressing Army problems: the huge backlog of untrained reservists and the failure to reach full combat readiness among U.S.-based divisions.

Pentagon sources said Monday the Army should be able to slash the reservist backlog — 133,100 as of last June 30 — to 60,000 by next summer. The Army training bases, officials said, should be training as many as 20,000 reservists a month by early next year. Right now the Army is scheduled to train only 7,000 reservists monthly.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced the cutback at a news conference Saturday. He said draft calls — barring unforeseen contingencies — should average less than 25,000 through March, about half the current levels.

In past months the Army has been training more than 55,000 recruits a month but has been

At Avenue B and Walnut this morning cars driven by Sharon Ann Harwell and Daniel L. Gray, both of Hope, collided. The Volkswagen, driven by Miss Harwell, overturned.

Injured were passengers in the Harwell car, Mrs. Morris Harwell of Hope and Mrs. Henry Chandler of Murfreesboro. They were taken to a hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises by Herndon-Cornelius ambulance. Mrs. Wrenetta Green, also in the Harwell car and the driver, escaped injury as did Gray.

City Officers Richard Rowe and James Neal charged Gray with failure to yield the right-of-way.

Scottish Police Hunt Killer

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — Police hunted today for a man who sprang from behind a tree and stabbed Jennifer Hunt, 19, daughter of the man who led the conquest of Mt. Everest.

Miss Hunt, an arts student at Aberdeen University, had 21 stitches taken in her gashed neck after the attack Monday night on the university campus.

Col. Sir John Hunt led the 1953 British expedition which scaled Mt. Everest for the first time.

Prisoner Holds Officers at Bay

PINE BLUFF, ARK. (AP) — Pine Bluff Police said that Levi Brown, about 35, of Pine Bluff, ripped open a sheet-metal wall in the city jail Monday and held officers at bay for nearly an hour.

Officers said Brown climbed into the attic on the second floor of the police station and officers could not get to him for more than an hour because he was throwing things from a window.

Two patrolmen finally subdued Brown and returned him to his cell.

Decision to Reduce Draft Calls Should Cut Reserve Backlog

unable to reduce substantially the number of untrained reservists and National Guardsmen. The large pools of untrained men have been a sharp target of congressional critics who contend the reserve program amounts to a haven for those men who otherwise would be drafted to fight in Viet Nam.

The eased draft calls, part of an over-all slowdown in the rate of troop deployment to South Viet Nam announced by McNamara Saturday, also could lead to the end of training duties for the 1st and 2nd Armored Divisions in Texas.

Despite Pentagon announcements earlier this year that all in-division training would be completed by October, officials said the two armored divisions are not expected to complete training until early spring.

Pentagon sources said the divisions — normally considered part of the U.S. Strategic Reserve for emergency duty round the world — were forced to continue training because of the lack of training facilities as the Army strained to meet its heavy Viet Nam commitments.

Infantry Kills 302 Enemy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — American infantrymen battled an estimated 1,000 charging Viet Cong for four hours in Tay Ninh Province today and reported 302 enemy bodies counted after the fighting ended.

The battle resumed at 6 a.m. for troops of the U.S. 1st Division, who lost contact almost completely Monday with the tough Viet Cong force that had battled American troops for four days.

U.S. officers at operational headquarters told Associated Press photographer John Nance tonight that 302 enemy bodies had been counted after the fighting ended, that large numbers of weapons, grenades and ammunition had been taken and that an 80-bed Viet Cong hospital had been found.

Associated Press correspondent John Lengel reported from the battlefield that some American officers estimated 500 of the enemy were killed today.

He reported one battalion of the 1st Division's 28th Regiment bore the brunt of the new fighting. American casualties were officially reported light.

In other scattered actions: An American spokesman said a Viet Cong force of unknown size moved into a village 75 miles southwest of Saigon at 2:30 a.m. Monday and kidnapped the entire population of 90 to 110 persons. There was no immediate explanation for the raid.

Units of the U.S. 101st Airborne and 4th Infantry divisions moved in on a major Communist stronghold in Phu Yen Province, about 230 miles northeast of Saigon. The American troops reported uncovering three enemy base camps, some of them equipped with fortified bunkers, and a first aid station with facilities for about 100 men. The Viet Cong had fled.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division fought a five-hour battle with a force of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong 300 miles northeast of Saigon Monday and reported 46 of the enemy killed. This pushed the enemy toll in Operation Thayer to 236 killed since Oct. 25, a spokesman said.

U.S. pilots flew 140 missions over North Viet Nam Monday. The fliers said they destroyed 45 cargo barges, three antiaircraft sites, 48 buildings, trucks and rail lines. They also reported damaging a radar station and said other strikes set off 13 secondary explosions and 16 fires.

American pilots flew 507 sorties in South Viet Nam and the South Vietnamese reported 285.

Youth Shot Accidentally

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Barry Warner, 5, of near Mabelvale was killed Monday when a .22 caliber Italian-made pistol accidentally discharged, with a shot striking him in the chest.

Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Warner, had found the pistol in the glove compartment of the family car, sheriff's deputies said.

Here's Things to Watch in Vote Trend

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — Political analysts studying election returns tonight will be looking for trends, the rise and fall of potential presidential nominees and the effect of such widely discussed subjects as the "white backlash" and the Viet Nam war.

Here are some areas to watch:

Trends — Six bellwether House districts have reflected changes in congressional party lines over the past decade. The six are the Connecticut 4th, Pennsylvania 19th, Iowa 4th, Indiana 9th, Wisconsin 1st and Ohio 10th. They are among 44 House districts, currently represented by first-term Democrats, which were held by Republicans before 1964. Practically all of the 44 Democrats are solid supporters of the Johnson administration.

Congressional control — Democrats are assured of retaining Senate control and are expected to keep House control, but with a smaller majority than their current ratio of 295 to 140. A switch of just 25 House seats from pro-Johnson Democrats to anti-Johnson Republicans would have meant the defeat of such key Johnson domestic measures as medicare, open housing, rent supplements and demonstration cities. Thus, even fewer GOP gains than the off-year average of 40 could mean Johnson might have to settle for a less ambitious tenuous domestic program over the next two years and might threaten funding for such approved programs as rent supplements and demonstration cities.

Effect on parties — Results might give a big boost to several Republicans prominently mentioned as presidential possibilities for 1968, including Govs. George Romney of Michigan and James A. Rhodes of Ohio, gubernatorial nominee Ronald Reagan in California and senatorial candidate Charles H. Percy in Illinois. Big GOP congressional gains might help Richard M. Nixon, the party's chief campaigner.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's national prestige may be affected by whether Democrat Karl F. Royster is re-elected governor of Minnesota. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy could receive a boost if fellow Democrat Frank D. O'Connor defeats Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in New York.

A big victory for Mrs. George C. Wallace as Alabama governor would increase the prospect that her husband will make a third-party presidential bid in 1968, as would victories by such anti-Johnson Democratic gubernatorial candidates as Jim Johnson in Arkansas and Lester C. Maddox in Georgia.

Red Takeover Basic Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the conflict in Viet Nam "basically is an effort by North Viet Nam" to take over the entire country.

Speaking on the NBC "Today" television show, Rusk said the prospect of peace "turns on whether Hanoi will give up its ambition to take South Viet Nam. It's as simple as that."

As for the Manila conference, Rusk said the seven nations expressed their determination to halt aggression, whether the aggression be "directly, overtly, or covertly."

He said North Viet Nam generals in the South "are giving direction to the Viet Cong. If the Northern elements go home, South Viet Nam can work things out very quickly."

Child Struck, Killed by Train

GOULD, Ark. (AP) — Rex Sullivan, 6, son of Mrs. Kenneth Mezell of Dumas, was killed Sunday when he was struck by a grain truck on his grandfather's farm five miles east of here.

Authorities reported Monday that the child was struck by a truck driven by his uncle, John Mezell of Dumas.

Voters Standing in Line Here, Polls to Close at 6:30 p.m.

Hempstead County voters, like the rest of the State, flocked to the polls today in record numbers for a general election. In fact many observers said it was the first time in memory that a long line had formed at practically every precinct.

This issue in part to the extremely long ballot but mainly to the interest both statewide and locally. With Republicans in their strongest challenge ever in Arkansas to the Democratic grip interest has flamed all year.

A check with many local precincts indicated a heavy turnout at 10:30 a.m. with lines of voters waiting their turn. There are over 8,000 eligible to vote in Hempstead county. Local interest, outside of the gubernatorial race, centered on the Sheriff's race where incumbent Jimmie Griffin is being opposed by Brooks Collins, who is running as an independent.

CBS, NBC and ABC television networks will conduct a Voter Profile Analysis in the Hope vote, one on the governor and congressional race to be held in local precincts.

Jim Johnson spoke of a unified Democratic Party and Republican Winthrop Rockefeller said voters would reject "the smears and vilification of a badly beaten man" as the two gubernatorial opponents closed their campaign with election eve television speeches.

The two-month grind of politicking has dealt mostly with name-calling from both sides as each candidate claimed he could best serve the interests of Arkansans.

Voters will reach their decision today when an estimated half-million electors go to the polls for the general election. Johnson made one more live speaking engagement while both candidates appeared on ten television stations in surrounding states.

Johnson spoke at the county courthouse in Pine Bluff where he told an enthusiastic crowd of 1,500 persons that they had voted for a change in the Democratic primaries and he would give it to them.

Landscape Meet Set for Tonight

There will be a landscape meeting in the Extension Conference Room at the County Courthouse Tuesday, November 8, at 7:00 p.m. according to Calvin J. Caldwell, county agent.

J.K. Ball, Extension Horticulturist, will discuss lawn grasses, what shrubs to use and where they should be used along with other landscaping tips. He will use some live shrubs, colored slides and some hand-out material in his discussion. Anyone interested in landscaping is invited to attend Mr. Caldwell said.

men are invited.

Earl Bruce, Jr., son of Mrs. Jesse Bruce, is now in Udorn, Thailand, where he is a helicopter flight mechanic with Air Asia Comman. Limited, Washington, D.C. His initial assignment was Taipei, Taiwan, before reporting for duty at Udorn. He will fly food and farm equipment to neighboring villages and was one of eight men accepted for this assignment.

New home-owners will be especially interested in a special landscape design meeting in the Extension Office conference room tonight at 7 p.m. It will not last long and all will be able to get plenty of the election returns, for the bulk of them won't be coming in until after the meeting.

Bob Porter of Hope Novelty and Temple Cigarette Co., Inc., Hope, Ark., attended the 1966 Convention Trade Show of Automatic Merchandising in Chicago, Ill.

There will be a Country Music Jamboree Saturday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Patmos School auditorium. Patmos Rainbow Melodies and other bands will take part. The public is invited.

ELECTION

An estimated 59 million Americans decide today on the men and women who will make up the House, fill 35 Senate seats and occupy 35 governor's chairs.

Political analysts are looking for trends, the rise and fall of potential presidential candidates and the effect of such issues as the "white backlash" and the Viet Nam war in today's voting.

President Johnson likes to be the first one in his Texas hill country town to cast his ballot. But facing surgery, he says he plans to vote "when I wake up."

He'll Have a Long Vote Trip

BOSTON (AP) — John W. McGarry will have a long trip to vote today.

McGarry, chief counsel to the Congressional Election Commission in Washington, expected to be in California this week, and so applied for an absentee ballot.

He never received the absentee ballot and because the law allows only one to a voter, he couldn't get another.

Secretary of State Kevin H. White said Monday he had word that McGarry would fly to Boston, his legal residence, to vote — then fly back to California.

59 Million Americans Due to Vote

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 59 million Americans decide today on the men and women who will make up the House, fill 35 Senate seats and occupy 35 governor's chairs.

The nonpresidential-year elections are almost as variable as the weather. Frustrations of the Viet Nam war, white reaction to racial disturbances, high cost of living irritation and the impact of President Johnson's "Great Society" programs provide an uncertain background for the balloting.

Nowhere in advance of tonight's countdown of votes was there any evidence of a national trend on these or any other issues.

Although a record off-year turnout seemed to be in the making, this was more a matter of the mathematics of population growth than of interest in a campaign that generally found voters apathetic to candidates' appeals.

There was tacit agreement among political strategists that Republicans will make some gains, as the party lacking a temporary lease on the White House customarily does in such elections.

Perhaps the GOP's greatest advances would come in governor contests, and in state legislative races where they were clobbered in the Barry Goldwater disaster of 1964.

The guessing was that Republicans might wind up with a net gain of five or six state executives, thus broadening their base for a 1968 attack on Johnson.

Surveys indicated Republicans might pick up in the neighborhood of 30 House seats to amend the massive 295-140 margin the Democrats held in the 89th Congress. Any turnover of this nature might fall most heavily on the 44 freshmen Democrats elected in 1964. At least 28 of them are reported in trouble.

Democrats and Republicans may trade some seats in senatorial contests. But the politicians' thinking was that there will be little change in the 67-33 bulge Johnson's party now holds.

A shift of 25 or more votes in the House might strand some of Johnson's legislative proposals in the new Congress. He would not be likely, for example, to get through bills to outlaw state union shop bans or to fix federal standards for unemployment compensation.

Southern Democrats might join with the Republicans to knock out the Teachers' Corps and to end rent subsidies. The financing of the demonstration cities program would be tougher to obtain.

Firemen Fail to Save a Arkansas Boy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A one-year-old Jonesboro, Ark., boy died Monday despite efforts of a St. Louis fireman and other passers-by who were summoned by the boy's mother after he gagged on a slice of apple.

The victim was Michael Eugene Webb, the son of Mrs. Dorothy Webb, 32, of Jonesboro. The mother and child were visiting her mother, Mrs. Eula Wychoff of St. Louis.

Police said Mrs. Webb told them her son began to choke on a piece of apple. She said she summoned aid after running out the front door.

A fireman, George Hohnann, who was driving past the house, stopped and administered artificial resuscitation, but was unable to revive the child. Police said another passer-by drove the youth and his mother to Lutheran Hospital where the boy was pronounced dead.

Crossett Asks Utility Loan

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Allied Utilities Corp. of Crossett has asked the state Public Service Commission for permission to borrow money from private sources to pay for improvements in its system.

We have known in strictest confidence for several months about plans for a major paper mill complex in Hempstead county—but the story "broke" unexpectedly in a federal agency release which we published on this page yesterday. Presumably this permits us to write what we have known in confidence since mid-summer—although it is little enough.

Yesterday's story from the Economic Development Administration of the U. S. Department of Commerce, Washington, D.C., was in the main an announcement of approval of a $1,870,000 grant to help the Southwest Arkansas Water District set up a five-county distribution system, this amount to be matched by the water district's issuance of revenue bonds—a project costing a total of $3,740,00.

The new mill announcement came in one short paragraph. Among the beneficiaries of the water district it was mentioned like this:

"Champion Paper Company will build a plant in Hempstead county."

The local man behind the proposed Champion mill is Horace Cabe, Gurdon lumberman, who assembled the land Champion is buying. But I was unable to reach Mr. Cabe for a statement in time for publication today.

However, I do know that he spent years rounding up the acreage on Little River near McNab that would be suitable for a major paper mill, and that Champion Paper Company executives have flown in here several times to make surveys and soil tests, and that a commitment was made a couple of weeks ago and the land transaction is in process of being closed.

Completion of the land purchase won't necessarily mean immediate construction of the mill, of course; the "tight money" situation is delaying construction projects all over the nation.

But the news about Champion does mean a commitment—and a tremendous one—for the future of our section. The newspaper business knows Champion as a world-famous manufacturer of everything in paper. Our own newspaper supplier, Southland Mills of Lufkin, Texas, opened in 1940—and many years before that Champion already was a giant. As I recall, in the early years of the Southland mill it was Champion which furnished it with chemicals and processing supplies.

Among other confidential information that can now be disclosed is the fact that the projected Champion mill is expected to be much larger than the Nekoosa-Edwards paper mill which is under construction at Ashdown, on the other side of Little River.

We had verification of this last summer when the Wall Street Journal printed an announcement from the president of Champion in New York that his company was planning for "somewhere in the South", one of the largest of paper mills.

This appears to be it—and it's a great day for Hope and southwest Arkansas.

Co-op Asks for Service Loan

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Carroll Electric Co-operative of Berryville wants to borrow $150,000 to improve its service to Bella Vista and rural areas in Benton County.

The co-operative asked the state Public Service Commission Monday to let it borrow the money, to be used for a $90,000 transmission line and a $60,000 sub-station at Bella Vista.

Comedian Suffers Stroke

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Comedian Joe E. Lewis underwent hospital tests today to determine the extent of a stroke he suffered in his hotel room Monday night.

A spokesman for Sunrise Hospital, where Lewis was taken, described the stroke as "very mild" and said Lewis, 60, was in good condition.
